

A black and white map of Missouri. The Missouri River is shown as a thick black line flowing from the top left to the bottom right. The word "MISSOURI" is printed in large, bold, uppercase letters in the center of the state. In the southwest, two counties are outlined with rectangles: "CONTEA DI CLAY" is the northern one, and "CONTEA DI JACKSON" is the southern one. A small black dot representing the city of Independence is located within Clay County. Two lines with arrows point from the county names to their respective rectangles. The river is labeled "Fiume Missouri" in two locations: once in the upper left and once in the lower right.
